

Pilston

Small village of thirty or so inhabitants on the main road north nestled at the southern edge of the Grimwald Mountains. It lies under the protection of Fort Malion. The people are generally friendly and tend to send out traders every few weeks to pick up supplies from the other nearby settlements. They produce their own food on rough farmlands in the foothills of the mountains.

Pilston was attacked and pillaged by a grimlock tribe which emerged from the mountain. The inhabitants were rounded up by the raiders and marched back into their mountain lair to be gutted and eaten. The ten or so survivors were rescued by the Bergen Bunch shortly before they were cooked.
